Winnetka 'Home Alone' house on the market for a cool $2.4M

Chicago Tribune

The red-brick Winnetka Georgian so bravely defended by Macaulay Culkin in "Home Alone" is for sale for $2.4 million.

Homeowners John and Cynthia Abendshien, empty-nesters who purchased the home in late 1988 for $875,000, acknowledge that it may not be the best time to put a high-end house on the market but believe the home's attributes and its cachet may net a buyer.

The couple also researched the housing market and were advised that it might not bounce back for another three to five years.

"We just decided we wouldn't wait any longer," Cynthia Abendshien said.

The 4,250-square-foot, 14-room home sits on a half-acre lot and features four bedrooms, 3.2 baths, a large screened-in porch with a chandelier and, of course, the staircase sled-d down by Culkin in John Hughes' 1990 film.

The median sales price in Winnetka in April was $1.297 million.

"The $2.4 million isn't just because of its cinematic history," said the home's listing agent, Marissa Hopkins of Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage. "It really is a residential masterpiece."

Only pre-qualified buyers can make appointments to see the home, and no open houses are planned. "It would be a zoo," Hopkins said. "There are a lot of people who would like to see the 'Home Alone' house if they were given the opportunity."

Meanwhile, another famous North Shore property, the Highland Park home featured in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," is temporarily off the market but it will be relisted, said Coldwell Banker agent Meladee Hughes. Originally listed at $2.3 million, it most recently was offered for $1.65 million.

Don't follow Nick and Mariah's example

I am not a mom.

Nor do I play one on TV, though some say I bear a passing resemblance to Phylicia Rashad circa 1980.

The best I can offer is that I'm a doting godmother to two adorable children, and in my youth, I adopted a small village of Cabbage Patch Kids.

Despite that inexperience, I am apparently a better baby namer than half of Hollywood stars, who think names including Apple (Gwyneth Paltrow and Chris Martin) and Kal-el (Nicolas Cage) are perfectly appropriate for their bundles of joy.

A fruit and Superman's original name? No shocker those ... er ... imaginative monikers did not make the list of most popular baby names, released by the Social Security Administration on Thursday.

Neither did Moroccan and Monroe, the just-announced names of Mariah "Mimi" Carey and Nick Cannon's twins.

Rumor has it "Moroccan" is also the name of a living room in one of Carey's homes and Carey confirmed that "Monroe" referenced Marilyn Monroe, an idol of hers.

I can't help but assume anesthesia during the birth had something to do with these selections, and I posted as much at redeyechicago.com/kylesfiles.

Quite a few Kyles Filers agreed, but some responded that the Carey-Cannon twins' names don't matter much since they were born with silver (make that, glitter) spoons in their mouths.

The assumption is they won't have to actually apply for a job.

But celebrity parentage doesn't always lead to a life of leisure.

Tori Spelling, for example, clearly isn't living off sweet spoils from her estranged millionaire mother, Candy. Luckily, "Tori" works on a resume should the sitcom-turned-reality star ever run out of that Donna dinero.

Moroccan though?

Just hearing me say it over the phone elicited prolonged, nervous laughter from an area photographer who has seen her share of unusual names taking children's portraits.

"My daughter's name is Misha, which is not very common name," Michele Rivera of Lombard-based Misha Media Photography said. "I didn't want anything common like Lucy or Anna and I like unusual names, as long as it's not Moroccan because little kids could be a little bit cruel."

A little bit, indeed.

Moms and dads, please think before you name.

Start by eliminating as potential options the names of drinks you had on your last cruise, superheroes or anything that would be considered more appropriate for a Pomeranian.

A baby's name may represent a clever inside reference to you, but for the kid, it could mean a lifetime of awkward explanation and embarrassment.

And no amount of money, or a mommy named Mimi, can save them from that fate.

Just ask the Cabbage Patch Kid I named "Kylene." That is, if you can find her. We're kinda estranged.

Silent sensation

He's performed with Fiddy, Pauly D and David Guetta—and he's only 16

Chicago Tribune

Nine months ago, Keenan Cahill was just another freshman at York High School in Elmhurst, doing his homework, holing up in his room to listen to music, and, according to his family, coming out only to eat.

Now the teenager with the gift for lip-syncing is a YouTube sensation so popular that he is friends with some of the biggest names in the entertainment industry, has a manager and needs security guards to escort him in and out of nightclubs for appearances.

Keenan's YouTube channel—Beener-KeeKee9952—is seen each day by more than 1 million viewers, who watch his animated video performances. He recorded them on a webcam in the now-famous bedroom in the Elmhurst townhouse he shares with his mom and younger sister.

As the 16-year-old soars to Internet fame, questions about the rare genetic disease that has stunted his growth and complicated his life are second to inquiries about what artist he will perform with next.

The videos already have led to lip-syncing sessions with DJ Pauly D from "Jersey Shore" and 50 Cent. He has filmed a commercial with Jennifer Aniston.

He also has performed live with hip-hop artist David Guetta and flirted on TV with Chelsea Handler.

"Nervous? I don't really get nervous. I just do it," Keenan said.

On camera, you often just see his upper body. He is literally dancing from the neck up—swiveling his head and shoulders. His expressions change to the beat of the music.

Keenan's career began when he received a computer and webcam for his 13th birthday. Not long afterward, he uploaded two of his lip-synced songs onto YouTube.

"I always wanted to be noticed," he said.

Those two songs drew the usual mix of online comments. But then last fall he uploaded the now-famous video of him lip-syncing Katy Perry's "Teenage Dream," and in a few months his own dream had come true. The video has more than 38 million hits on YouTube.

Keenan Cahill, 16, of Elmhurst, has become a YouTube sensation with his lip-syncing videos to popular songs mostly made from his bedroom. CHUCK BERMAN/TRIBUNE

In response, Perry tweeted sweetly, "I heart @keenancahill." Suddenly millions of people were paying attention to the kid with curly hair and glasses.

Then there is the flipside of Keenan's life. Every Thursday after school, he's on the couch with his laptop and a needle in his arm, getting a four-hour enzyme infusion his mom hopes will give him better endurance, loosen his joints and help him breathe. This summer he's expected to have his 10th surgery.

Keenan was born with a rare genetic disorder called Maroteaux-Lamy Syndrome, also known as MPS Type 6, discovered when he was 1 year old.

Doctors said his growth would be hampered, but there would be no cognitive impairment. At 2, he had a bone marrow transplant to slow progression of the disease. It required him to live in isolation for about a year. Brain stem surgery followed.

Doctors from multiple hospitals follow Keenan's case, one of fewer than 1,100 worldwide, according to the National MPS Society.

"I just hope other kids like me with diseases or disabilities can see me and know that they shouldn't give up on their dreams," he said. "Anything can happen."

Tour bus driver charged with DUI

Soto

Chicago Tribune

A tour bus driver who allegedly had cocaine in his system when the bus struck and killed a woman in downtown Chicago was wanted by police for sex crimes against two children more than two years ago, authorities said Thursday.

David Soto, 47, of the far Northwest Side, was charged Thursday with aggravated DUI in connection with the death of Justyna Palka, 26, who died Tuesday after being struck by a tour bus as she crossed Columbus Drive at Illinois Street in Streeterville.

After Soto tested positive for cocaine, police checked his record and found that an "investigative alert" had been issued for him in connection with two alleged sex offenses against children, Assistant Cook County State's Attorney Kathy Muldoon said.

The assaults allegedly occurred between 2006 and 2008 but weren't reported to Chicago police until January 2009. At the time, police could not find Soto, who had two prior convictions for sexual offenses, and believed he had left the country, said Chicago police spokeswoman Lt. Maureen Biggane. She said the police continued to search for Soto.

Based on those accusations, prosecutors on Thursday also charged Soto with predatory criminal sexual assault of a child and aggravated criminal sexual abuse of a victim under 13.

Soto is accused of sexually molesting an 8-year-old girl in December 2008, when she was visiting his residence with another girl her age, who is related to Soto. The first girl immediately told the other girl what happened, and that girl told her mother, Muldoon said.

At the same time, the second girl also told her mother that Soto had sexually molested her several times from 2006 to 2008, when she was 6 and 7 years old, Muldoon said.

According to court records, Soto was convicted in 1993 of aggravated criminal sexual assault for fondling a 6-year-old female relative.

A producer's checkered past

Driving force behind proposed Boystown reality TV show has criminal history

By Georgia Garvey

REDEYE

Plans for a Boystown reality show are in doubt after reports surfaced of the would-be producer's courts record including child sexual abuse and bankruptcy.

David Schlessinger, 45, pleaded guilty in 1998 to aggravated criminal sexual abuse of a 15-year-old and was sentenced to three years in prison. Schlessinger is listed on the state's sex offender registry online.

Schlessinger, who in April was casting in bars along Halsted Street in Boystown, did not dispute the conviction.

"I have and always been truly sorry for the mistakes that I made 15 years ago. I have taken responsibility for these actions and their consequences," read a statement Schlessinger's publicist gave to the media.

cist gave to the media.

The owner of Scarlet, one of the bars sought as a possible location for the show, told RedEye he has decided not to take part in the reality show. John Dalton, the owner of Minibar, said his establishments would not be a part of the show. The Windy City Times first reported on Schlessinger's record.

In a statement, Chitown Entertainment, the producer of the "Boystown" reality show, said other bars—including Circuit, Hydrate and Spin—are eager to be part of the show, but representatives from Hydrate and Spin dispute that.

Schlessinger has been a defendant in more than 20 foreclosures during the past three years. He filed for bankruptcy in 2000. A search of Schlessinger's records also turned up multiple instances of judgments and liens for smaller amounts, some as recent as 2010.

In response to the bankruptcies, Schlessinger released a statement through his publicist that read, "Donald Trump filed bankruptcy four times in his lifetime and look where he is today."

As for the foreclosures, Schlessinger said he was providing low-cost housing and some tenants ruined properties. "Like so many other Americans, I was hit hard by the real estate crisis," he said.

Mike Macharello, Circuit's owner, said he has known Schlessinger for a while and though the man has "a checkered past," he "cleaned up his act."

"This reality show is something that he's trying to do in his life that is a positive thing," Macharello said. "I have chosen to just give the guy a chance and help him out."

7 NEW YORK Six picture frames hang inside a firehouse in Manhattan, each displaying a photograph of a man who died in the aftermath of the worst terrorist attack in U.S. history.

"We always say never forget," said one firefighter from New York's Engine 23.

He said President Obama's visit to New York was an acknowledgement of "what we're going through."

"This is what New York is going through," said the man, who didn't want to share his name.

After nearly a decade of war prompted by the horrific events of Sept. 11, 2001, Obama traveled to Manhattan on Thursday to meet with survivors and lay a wreath at ground zero, four days after the killing of al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden.

"I wanted to just come up here to thank you," Obama said in prepared remarks, after eating lunch with firefighters and former New York City mayor Rudy Giuliani. "This is a symbolic site of the extraordinary sacrifice that was made on that terrible day almost 10 years ago."

The president visited with members of Fire Engine 54, Battalion Nine, which lost 15 men after al-Qaida hijackers flew two commercial airliners into the World Trade Center's twin towers.

"Obviously we can't bring back your friends that were lost," he said. "I know that each and every one of you not only grieve for them, but have also over the last 10 years dealt with their family."

BULLS' RACE FOR THE NBA TITLE COULD MAKE FOR HOLLYWOOD GOLD

JUDGE REINHOLD

as Omer Asik

Reinhold will have to pack on some muscle, but he's got that innocent face Asik uses to lull his opponents into a false sense of security. At least, that's what we assume Asik is doing.

THE TASMANIAN DEVIL

as Derrick Rose

Let's face it, no human can duplicate what Rose does on the basketball court. But Taz can. And once he gets some diction lessons a la "The King's Speech," he'll be good to go.

They're becoming the stuff of Hollywood legend, these Bulls. They began the season with a brand-new coach, a revamped roster and only one playoff series win since 1998. They've overcome prolonged injuries to two of their best players to earn the top seed in the NBA playoffs. Their superstar has elevated his game and is the league MVP. All they need now is a perfect ending: a championship. We'll have to wait to learn how this story turns out, but it's never too early to start casting the movie about the hometown team. CHSOSA@TRIBUNE.COM | @SAYITISSOSA

By Chris Sosa

REDEYE

ED O'NEILL

as Tom Thibodeau

O'Neill has experience playing both a Chicago-based character ("Married With Children") and a coach ("Little Giants"). He'll have to take his screaming to another level if he's going to make a convincing Thibodeau.

COMMON

as Carlos Boozer

We'll forgive Common for starring as a New Jersey Nets player in "Just Wright," as it does give him hoops cred. The South Side native also has the Boozer facial hair going for him.

EDDIE STEEPLESas Joakim Noah*

Steeple, who played Darnell "Crab Man" Turner on "My Name Is Earl," has the rare smile-hair combination needed to portray the gregarious Noah. Ripping on the city of Cleveland's vacation potential is optional.

LOVIE SMITHas Keith Bogans*

No need to go far to fill this role. Sure, Smith has a few years on Bogans, but the Bears coach did play college football and is used to being in front of a camera.

TRACY MORGANas Ronnie Brewer*

The director will have to watch out for Morgan ad-libbing. Then again, don't all sports movies need an element of unpredictability? The "30 Rock" star is the guy for the job.

MICHAEL RAPAPORTas Brian Scalabrine*

Rapaport's got an MVP award from the 2010 NBA All-Star Celebrity Game under his belt, which he earned largely for holding Terrell Owens in check. That's fine, because playing Scalabrine doesn't involve scoring much.

DONALD GLOVERas C.J. Watson*

On "Community," Glover's character has to deal with strong personalities—not unlike players in an NBA locker room. But he's also confident, a valuable trait when you're the point guard of the Bulls' Bench Mob.

ASHTON KUTCHERas Kyle Korver*

Kutcher's love for the Bears is well-documented, so why not cast him as a Bulls player? Oh, and he happens to be a dead ringer for Bulls sharpshooter Korver.

BORIS KODJOEas Taj Gibson*

Kodjoe has had his share of butt-kicking roles, including in the short-lived NBC series "Undercovers." Basketball is along the same lines, except these elbow-induced bruises will be real.

TYRESE GIBSONas Luol Deng*

Gibson showed off his Michael Jordan-inspired crossover in the first "Transformers" movie. Now he'll have to work on draining 3-pointers in the clutch, a la Deng. Way easier than fighting Decepticons.

DENZEL WASHINGTONas Kurt Thomas*

Denzel, who's very popular with the ladies, draws this role by virtue of Stacey King's nickname for Thomas: "Big Sexy." Washington also went one on one with Ray Allen in "He Got Game," so we know he can handle the rock.

FULL O'BULL

A ROUNDUP OF PLAYOFF NEWS AND NOTES*BEHIND BOOZER

Tom Thibodeau won't throw embattled Carlos Boozer (right) under the bus, even if fans will. "We need him out there," Thibodeau said of Boozer after Thursday's brief practice at the Berto Center. "His rebounding is critical for us. Post presence. People collapse on him, so it opens up a lot of things for everybody."

SECOND TO NONE

Luol Deng was thisclose to winning the Joe Dumars Trophy handed out along with the Sportsmanship Award on Thursday. Golden State's Stephen Curry won. So much for a trophy sweep for Chicago.

THE DIGIT*26.7

1 How will the Bulls do in Atlanta?	They'll be Fanta-stic! Sprite-ly! Squirt!	It's a Magic City where Cheetahs always prosper.	I shouldn't make a General Sherman joke. Mostly because no one would get it.	They'll be fine, unless it snows. Flurries shut that town down, man.	I see them doing the splits.
2 Why can't the Bulls stop Jeff Teague?	Because he drives to the basket. He doesn't take the CTA to get there.	He's in a Teague of his own. (crickets)	BECAUSE YOU CAN ONLY HOPE TO CONTAIN JEFF TEAGUE!	Don't know. Time to call in Team Six, if they're not tired.	Give 'em a break. They're still trying to figure out who the hell he is.
3 What worries you, if anything, about the Bulls-Atlanta series now?	Ne-Ne could attack the Stars.	You let a scrub hang around and then you can't get rid of 'em. Like Tracy dating Bag Boy.	Boozer's D. The Heat getting extra rest. Not enough Scalabrino.	That Carlos Boozer will be Carlos Boozer.	That the Bulls will win it on the road in Game 6. The UC needs to see another clincher.
4 How can the season get worse for the last-place White Sox?	I'll be at their game Saturday in Seattle. Worried about the reign.	When it comes to finding personnel, their manhunting skills rank up there with the Pakistani government.	June 20-22. Cubs sweep.	It gets worse if some combo of Ozzie and Kenny stick around. Gett'n old.	Ozzie quits tweeting. He's the most interesting thing left.
5 What's the best part of the Kentucky Derby?	More hats than the royal wedding, same number of horse faces.	They wear hats just like the ladies at the royal wedding! ... Wait, can I change my answer?	That one part when they come down the stretch. Horsies!	Hearing about who won from your friends the next day.	There's nothing good about using animals for human fun. Now, where's the nearest campsite I can attack?

'Heartbreak city'

One of NCAA Tournament's signature voices splits from CBS

NCAA basketball without Gus Johnson is like New Year's Eve without Dick Clark, Bulls games without Stacey King, Cubs games without Ron Santo, Larry King's show without Larry King ... er, scratch that last one.

In case you haven't heard, Johnson and CBS parted ways Thursday after 16 years together, which means no more "rise and fire," no more "pure," no more "heartbreak city" during the NCAA Tournament. Sad, man, just sad.

According to the Sports Illustrated report, the two sides could not reach a deal. Which, translated, probably means CBS didn't want to pay the man what he's asking for.

Regardless, there's a big hole to fill at CBS, and here's who RedEye thinks could fill it.

CHARLES BARKLEY

He might not be an expert on NCAA hoops, as he displayed this year when he served as an in-studio analyst, but Sir Charles is nothing if not brutally honest. And funny. He calls 'em like he sees them, which is commendable.

STACEY KING

Of course, Chicago would miss its King of Cheers, but the Bulls announcer is destined for a bigger audience at some point. Heck, national announcers already are stealing his lines, so somebody thinks they would work.

OZZIE GUILLEN

It doesn't matter that he's not affiliated with basketball in any way whatsoever, we'd watch the Blizzard of Oz talk about a game of checkers. And, you never know, he might be out of a job soon. The network, of course, would need censors on 24-hour standby.

50 new rooftops, beer gardens and patios

By Lisa Arnett and Emily Van Zandt

After cursing Mother Nature through a blizzardy winter and the rainiest April in years, you're ready to sun yourself over dinner and drinks. Here's the lowdown on the outdoor spaces we're most psyched about this season, plus tons more new beer gardens, rooftops and sidewalk cafes. Now join us as we cross our fingers that the weather warms up for good.

5 hottest outdoor spaces

South Branch 100 S. Wacker Drive 312-546-6177

Take in a view of the Chicago River at one of the biggest outdoor spaces around—more than 4,000 square feet. The waterfront plaza has seating for around 175 and a bar with retractable walls for shade-seekers.

ETA: Now open, weather permitting

Paris Club 59 W. Hubbard St. 312-595-0800

We're really jazzed about what's under construction upstairs: indoor-outdoor lounge Studio Paris. A retractable roof will cover the outdoor half so that it can remain open after midnight, as well as in bad weather.

ETA: Early June

Frontier 1072 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-772-4322

This full-lot beer garden adjacent to the West Town bar and eatery will seat 100 with communal tables and lounge seating surrounding an outdoor fireplace. Construction still is under way.

ETA: Late May

Davanti Enoteca 1359 W. Taylor St. 312-226-5550

The only thing harder than snagging a seat inside will be getting one on the second-floor patio. Shaded by a retractable awning and decorated with lemon and fig trees, it'll feature tables for 35-40 plus a few benches.

Prasino 1846 W. Division St. No phone yet

When this seasonal American restaurant opens, the 100-seat sidewalk cafe is bound to get some attention. In addition to tables shaded by massive umbrellas, there also will be couches for people-watching.

ETA: Late July or early August

YOU ROCK, CHICAGO!

Goodbye Coastline
CHUAN D. VO FOR METROMIX

Metromix's eighth annual Rock 'n' Vote event had some new features: a three-judge panel whose votes played a part in the night's overall winner, and a headlining slot from I Fight Dragons—a former Rock 'n' Vote winner and Atlantic Records artist.

Otherwise, as Chicago music fans packed into the Hard Rock Cafe on Wednesday, it was another top-notch night of four local bands (whittled down by readers from 10 acts selected out of nearly 140 submissions) competing to become the 2011 Rock 'n' Vote winner. More than 4,300 text votes were tallied for pop-punk act Goodbye Coastline, garage-soul eight-piece The Congregation, rapper Matlock and rock quartet Yeah Dude (playing their first live show ever).

Goodbye Coastline came out on top by less than 1 percent, with a total of 27.5 percent of the vote. The band won a headlining slot during Hard Rock Cafe's next concert season as well as airfare, hotel accommodations and five tickets to the opening of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame's "Women of Rock" exhibit in Cleveland. Congratulations! See 70-plus photos now at metromix.com.

JODIE FOSTER STANDS BY MEL GIBSON, CASTING HIM IN HER NEW FILM 'THE BEAVER'

"I know that he is a great filmmaker, and he is a man that I love," Jodie Foster says of Mel Gibson, whom she directed and stars with in "The Beaver." JOSE M. OSORIO/TRIBUNE

By Matt Pais

REDEYE

Since Jodie Foster's now-25-year-old niece was a little girl, the two-time Oscar winner has told her the same thing.

"If you ever kill a bunch of people in a 7-Eleven with a machine gun," she said, "I want you to know that I will call the police, and I will visit you every day."

Huh?

"When you love someone and they're struggling, you don't run away from them," says Foster, 48. "You stand by their side."

This philosophy could explain Foster's fierce loyalty to her longtime friend, Mel Gibson. As Gibson has weathered numerous allegations of anti-Semitism, racism, sexism and more, Foster has defended his character and even reached out to the controversial actor to play a man with mental illness in her third directorial effort, "The Beaver."

Foster recently discussed Gibson, and her film, at the Elysian Hotel.

MORE ONLINE

What's on Jodie Foster's iPod? Read Matt's full interview at redeyechicago.com/movies.

So, why a beaver?

[Laughs.] That's a good [question for writer Kyle Killen]. Beavers are industrious. They make things out of wood. And they destroy as readily as they build.

Then the movie wouldn't work with a hamster or a hippo?

I think a hippo, it would be a whole new trajectory for him. It would be about going underwater and not being heard and not being seen. I think the beaver's a good metaphor; it was a good animal to choose. My regret is that beavers have eyes on either side of their heads, and that makes them very difficult to shoot [film]. So we had to create a beaver that has eyes on the front of its head.

I'm just worried about the beavers that will come to the theater and protest the anatomical inaccuracy.

Picketing? [Laughs.]

You've said the movie is not a comedy, but it was still nice that it doesn't have any sexually related jokes about, you know, beavers.

Well, we'll take any $11 we can get. I like the double entendre because I feel like it's irreverent, and I sort of feel like you know what, if you can have a sense of humor about that, then you should be able to see the damn

SUMMIT ENTERTAINMENT

Powerful puppetry

Get your mind out of the gutter with that title. "The Beaver" is about Walter (Mel Gibson), who's so gripped by depression that he resorts to speaking through a beaver puppet. Needless to say, this doesn't really work for his wife (Jodie Foster, who also directed) or his oldest son, Porter (Anton Yelchin). He's busy trying to woo a hottie valedictorian (Jennifer Lawrence) who asks him to write her graduation speech.

'The Beaver'
(PG-13)

The verdict: Emotionally messy in all the right places, "The Beaver" transitions quickly and delicately from oddly amusing to appropriately concerning. Don't expect a wacky movie that nods to Ranger Joe on "Full House" and says, "Check out this hilarious woodland-creature ventriloquist!" Instead, "The Beaver" bravely addresses the isolation of depression and the lack of easy answers when it comes to people with mental illness. You won't mind the contrivances or the hints of "Lars and the Real Girl" and "American Beauty." You will discuss the serious examination of how to express a wide spectrum of difficult feelings, and recognize these are much deeper concepts than anyone anticipates when seeing a movie called "The Beaver."

movie. I like people's faces when they say the name of the film.

You've said you're attracted to stories of spiritual crises. Why is that?

Boy, good question. [Laughs.] I think because whatever spiritual crises I have in my life—and I have them periodically—I think have, through the cruelty of what that is, allowed me to evolve into being better.

What counts as a spiritual crisis? Does it have to be something big, or can it be, "I'm out of peanut butter."

Uh, definitely not out of peanut butter. Although that would be sad! But, uh, I think it is small. I think they're details, and they're hard to translate and hard to explain to people, and I do a job that's hard to explain to people. And what I've found is that creativity is the thing that gets you through it. It allows you to be vital; it allows you to live again.

About Mel Gibson's performance you said, "He brought a lifetime of pain to the character that we've been talking about for years, that I knew was part of his psyche and who he is." On some level, do you think his personal struggles contributed to why he ### was right for the role?

Not his personal struggles, but I think anyone's personal struggles, [people who are] willing to face them. He's complex. There are all sorts of people that are not complex. Luckily he is, I think, and that's what makes him a great actor.

How therapeutic do you think it is to be going through something personally and then play a character who's also going through something emotionally grueling?

I think it is therapeutic. I think it's an outlet to express who you are. It's to communicate who you are. And the hardest thing, which I think the film talks about, the hardest thing about people who are suffering is that they are so isolated and they feel so alone, and they're not able to believe that if they expressed themselves that anyone will love them.

You've known Mel for a long time. After shooting, did you see a change as far as exorcising demons?

Did it help? [Laughs.] I don't know. I felt so much closer to him after the movie was over because I had not seen him really get this before. And I had to look into the cutting room over and over again and be so grateful for that performance. It's such a gift, it's such a gift. I don't know. I don't know that. I think he's the only one that can know that. I know that he has a lot of hard work to do, and he's got a lot goin' on.

Do you think it's ever fair to view an artist based on what they do off-screen?

I don't think it's possible not to when it's thrust in your face 24 hours a day. ... There are things I just don't want to know. I don't really want to know what someone looks like in their underwear against their will. I liked knowing what somebody's underwear looks like if they're in front of me and I know them, but against their will it makes me feel dirty. ...

I know that he is a great filmmaker, and he is a man that I love. That I know well. So I know an incredibly loyal, funny, giving, generous, smart guy who is probably the most beloved actor that I've ever worked with. ... Is that man truer or less true than who he is to his girlfriend when he's being secretly taped? I don't know. I can only know the man I know.

MATT PAIS IS REDEYE'S MOVIE CRITIC.

Gibson speaks

Last month, Mel Gibson applauded the friends who stuck by him last summer when his dispute with ex-girlfriend Oksana Grigorieva went public.

"You find out who your friends are," Gibson told Deadline Hollywood, citing "The Beaver" director Jodie Foster and longtime friend Whoopi Goldberg.

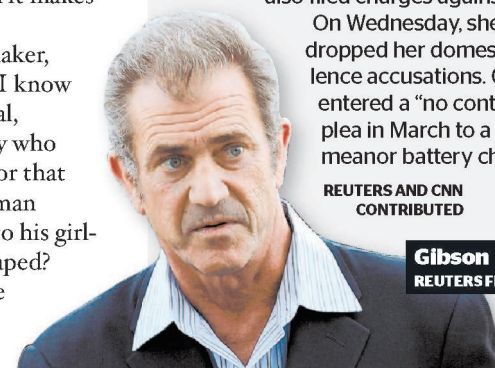

"I'd give her a pedicure every day of the week if I could," he said of Foster.

Gibson also expressed regret and anger at himself for the situation. Last summer, Grigorieva leaked audiotapes in which the actor berated her, and she also filed charges against him.

On Wednesday, she dropped her domestic violence accusations. Gibson entered a "no contest" plea in March to a misdemeanor battery charge.

ON TV

Watch Matt on "You & Me This Morning" at 7 a.m. Fridays on WCIU, The U.

Tired of giving away her "cookies" to the wrong men, Sabrina (Paula Patton) swears off sex until she meets the right man and asks God for a sign as to who that is. Literally seconds later, her car bumps into Jason (Laz Alonso), and within five months the two are ready to get married before Sabrina's job takes her to China. Easy, lovebirds: First there's the matter of your families (headlined by Angela Bassett and Loretta Devine) meeting and getting along.

The buzz: It's been less than a year since family clashes caused pre-wedding problems in "Our Family Wedding," which certainly wasn't the first movie to do it. So that's at least one thing borrowed, but here's something new: "Jumping the Broom" is the feature directorial debut for Salim Akil (director of TV series "The Game" and "Girlfriends").

The verdict: "Jumping the Broom" jumps all over the place. It's a serious drama about class, race and communication, but it's also melodramatic mush involving huge family secrets, pinky swears and a big ol' slap-fest. Characters act as if compromise and understanding are new concepts. Among a few loose ends, there's none greater than a punch in the face that results in absolutely nothing. Yet the movie notes that "details are what make a person," and the detailed performances (including an unusually winning turn from Mike Epps) are what make "Jumping the Broom" easily digestible, if hardly memorable.

MATT PAIS IS REDEYE'S MOVIE CRITIC.

The 'it' big-screen accessory: Eye patch

Los Angeles Times

Call it an aye for an eye. Hollywood is fixing its gaze on eye patches. The ophthalmological trend isn't exactly new, but the rogue's patch is experiencing a retinal renaissance on the big screen. Here's a closer look at movie eye patches, and what the accessory (the actors wearing them all are fully sighted) says about the character.

Samuel L. Jackson

Nick Fury in 'Iron Man 2' (2010)

Fury lost his left orb to shrapnel while in the CIA, but he's much cooler with blinkers than without.

Tom CruiseCol. Claus von Stauffenberg in 'Valkyrie' (2008)The German officer who tried to assassinate Hitler lost his eye when he was strafed; on Cruise, it just looks goofy.Daryl Hannah

Elle Driver in 'Kill Bill: Vol. 2' (2004)

She may have only one eye (her tutor Pai Mei plucked the other one out), but the California Mountain Snake still can cut you in half.Robert WagnerNumber 2 in 'Austin Powers in Goldmember' (2002)Combine the eye patch-wearing menace of Emilio Largo in James Bond's "Thunderball" with a poop joke.Anthony Hopkins

Odin in 'Thor'

With no strings attached to the patch, the mythical figure must have access to Krazy Glue. In a pinch, the patch doubles as a spoon rest.Jeff Bridges

Rooster Cogburn in 'True Grit' (2010)

For Bridges, it was more comfortable to wear his patch on the opposite eye than John Wayne did in the 1969 version of "True Grit;"
it wasn't a creative choice to make the character his own. It's clear Cogburn (likely injured in the Civil War) has seen tough times.

Hiddleston got muscled out as 'Thor' lead

The Fresno Bee

Seated next to the muscle-bound Chris Hemsworth, Tom Hiddleston looks like the wimpier half of the duo. The only similarity they share is that they're about the same height.

That didn't stop Hiddleston from trying out to play the god of thunder in the new Marvel Comics-inspired film "Thor."

"I really didn't want to play Thor. But like every actor in England who is 6-2, I auditioned," Hiddleston says. "I'm not built like a house, so there's no way in Odin's Asgard I could have delivered what Chris has done."

He didn't get cast as Thor, but Hiddleston is in the movie. He plays Loki, the god of mischief, who's Thor's brother. Through his passive-aggressive ways, Loki keeps Earth and Asgard in constant turmoil.

Despite Loki's actions, Hiddleston doesn't consider him a bad guy.

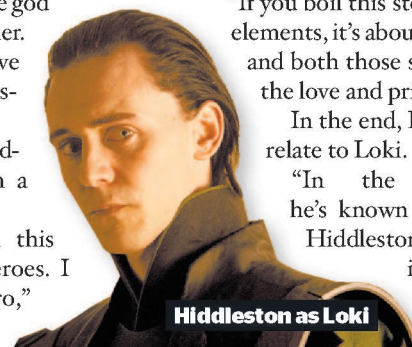

"There are no villains in this world, just misunderstood heroes. I think Loki thinks he is the hero," Hiddleston says. "There's a deeply misguided intention in Loki.

"If you boil this story down to the barest elements, it's about a father and two sons, and both those sons are competing for the love and pride of their father."

In the end, Hiddleston was able to relate to Loki.

"In the Norse mythology, he's known as the shape-shifter," Hiddleston says. "He can appear in many, many guises. So I suppose he is an actor."

'Borrowed' makes us blue

'Something Borrowed' (PG-13)

Who's in it: Ginnifer Goodwin, Kate Hudson, Colin Egglesfield, John Krasinski, Ashley Williams, Steve Howey

What it's about: This story, based on Emily Giffin's popular novel, is a pretty repellent view of women's friendship. Rachel (Goodwin) has long cherished a crush on law-school classmate Dex (Egglesfield) but watched helplessly as her best friend Darcy (Hudson) "stole" him and became engaged to him. After a boozy birthday party, Darcy goes home early, and Rachel and Dex end up in bed together. Soon, they realize they are in love but are unable to tell Darcy as the wedding date looms ever closer.

Worth watching? Aren't rom-coms supposed to be happy, harmless fantasies? Not this time.

MOIRA MACDONALD, THE SEATTLE TIMES

Wes Bentley

'There Be Dragons' (PG-13)

Who's in it: Dougray Scott, Wes Bentley, Charlie Cox

What it's about: Forty years after the Spanish Civil War, Robert (Dougray Scott) is writing a book about Josemaria Escriva, the Spanish priest and candidate for canonization (he's now a saint) who founded Opus Dei, the Roman Catholic organization that was cast as a heavy in "The Da Vinci Code." Ironically, Robert's father, Manolo, was Escriva's boyhood friend. Most of "Dragons" is a flashback. As young men Manolo (Wes Bentley) and Josemaria (Charlie Cox) have a falling out over politics. In the 1936 civil war pitting socialist republicans against royalist fascists, Manolo becomes a spy, infiltrating a republican fighting unit, while Josemaria founds Opus Dei as a sort of religious commune.

Worth watching? Director Roland Joffe has assembled a strong cast, but his leads—Bentley and Cox—are underwhelming. The two plots about opposite personalities leave neither character fully fleshed out.

WATER FOR ELEPHANTS

@katiekapoww: Christoph Waltz is an uberbingo in Water for Elephants. The film is visually stunning but overall a tad lackluster.

@wtflanksteak: Water for Elephants was Titanic on a circus train.

OTHERS

@rascal195: saw "Something Borrowed" a cute movie the gals will love. It could be an example for young ladies to learn.

@JustJoshBlue: "Source Code" was good & made Chicago look great...except for that whole exploding commuter train thing

Michelle Forbes talks commitment issues at showpatroltv.com.

Laughter cures what ails Forbes

You may find this hard to believe after watching her in "The Killing," but Michelle Forbes loves to laugh.

"Eventually, one day, I'm gonna hit a comedy. What do you think?" she asked during a recent phone conversation.

She might have to after "The Killing," the gut-wrenching AMC drama in which she gives a shattering performance as Mitch Larsen, a mother so lost in grief after the murder of her teen daughter that she can barely function. The series, which airs at 9 p.m. Sundays, is based on the Danish hit "Forbrydelsen," and follows the investigation into Rosie Larsen's death by Seattle detectives Sarah Linden (Mireille Enos) and Stephen Holder (Joel Kinnaman).

Unlike most U.S. police dramas, "The Killing" closely examines how violent death affects those left behind. Both Forbes and Brent Sexton, riveting as Mitch's husband, Stan, show the pain, anger and desperation of parents struggling with such a heartbreaking loss.

"The Killing" was just the kind of project Forbes was looking for after playing the orgyloving maenad Maryann in Season 2 of "True Blood." Unlike many viewers, Forbes thought that role was fun ("I was having the time of my life"). She wanted something more dramatic—and found Mitch.

"I just became obsessed with Mitch and just felt that I had something to offer this woman in inhabiting her," she said. "I guess there is a bit of a masochistic tendency in actors ... but it takes a very odd person, I suppose, to want to put yourself in that position, to inhabit a soul who is in such deep grief and bereavement."

A few years ago, Forbes won praise for playing another mother dealing with grief—in a completely different, more violent way—in the spellbinding Canadian drama "Durham County" (see it if you can). Although she loves the challenge of such difficult roles, it does take a toll. And that's where laughter comes in. Forbes, a fan of British comedy, has a surefire way to decompress after "sleeping and breathing" a character for a five-month shoot.

"For me, it's always about laughter," she said, citing "Fawlty Towers," "That Mitchell & Webb Show," "Peep Show" and the American comedy "Strangers with Candy" as the shows that got her through "The Killing."

"I think the danger is that you can flip too far into [the character]. I'm not a method actor, trust me. But it has a way of just seeping in and before you know it, your shoulders are still up around your ears but it's a beautiful Saturday afternoon," she said, laughing. "So yes, I lean towards farcical and absurdist humor."

More Pippa, please!

By Ariel Alexovich 7 facts about Prince William's sexy sister-in-law

REDEYE

Sure, Kate Middleton—excuse us, Catherine, Duchess of Cambridge—looked gorgeous on her wedding day. But her little sister, Pippa, 27, looked every bit as dazzling in her ivory-colored Alexander McQueen bridesmaid dress. And c'mon, whom would you rather hang out with? Kate, the boring married gal who must play it straight or face the queen, or Pippa, the singleton who gets scantily clad photos of herself dancing with hot guys posted all over the tabloids (as happened Wednesday)? We think the choice is obvious. Here are seven things you absolutely need to know right now about Pippa Middleton, the girl we want to be our new best friend. SOURCES: PEOPLE.COM, USMAGAZINE.COM, ABCNEWS.COM, DAILYMAIL.CO.UK

"Pippa" is short for Philippa.

That's a moderately common British name, you uncultured Yankee barbarian.

2

The Pippa Middleton Ass Appreciation Society has more than 200,000 fans. (Yes, there's also a Twitter account and T-shirts available for purchase.)

3

Pipster is no dumb hottie. She has an English degree from the University of Edinburgh, which isn't far from St. Andrews, where Kate and William went to college.

4

Partying is in her blood. She works with professional party planning company Table Talk in London, plus she's author of The Party Times, the online magazine for her parents' mail-order party supply business.

5

That televised chemistry with Prince Harry? It's all for show. Pippa has been dating handsome cricket player-turned-businessman Alex Loudon since December, and even brought him as her date to the royal wedding.

7

She's capable of creating her own royal ties. Pippa has dated two British aristocrats in the past, abc.com reported, plus a fancy-sounding chap named Alexander Spencer-Churchill, who is a relative of Princess Diana.

She's not afraid of a public royal feud (at least according to a British tabloid).

In 2008, the Daily Mail reported that princesses Beatrice and Eugenie wouldn't allow Pippa to sit in the front row of a fashion show because Pippa didn't invite Beatrice to a "roller-skating charity disco." If the story is true, maybe it's because Pippa disapproved of their taste in hats.

Here's What Our Customers Are Saying About Us...

I visited Piemonte Chevrolet because of an ad I saw about their Equity Review Department. Mike was so good to deal with and the equity manager Joe V. made it possible for me to trade in my SUV for a new Malibu with no money down and even got me a lower payment than before. It was a very good experience - they were all very nice!

Antioch, IL

I called late at night and got all of my questions answered within the hour. The salesperson was very friendly, and he even called me on a Saturday from the Cubs game on his day off to confirm our arrival. Very good customer service! I'd recommend them for purchasing any vehicle!

Dyersville, IA

Excellent Service! Very Enjoyable shopping experience. I went in knowing what I wanted and they got it for me. I will definitely come back for future purchases!

Bloomington, IL

So take a tip, it's worth the trip to Al Piemonte's Dundee Chevrolet.
